A BACHELOR'S CHRISTMAS DINNER.

I'm blue as I sit at dinner.
With loneliness, too, I sigh,
Though there's three of us here together,
The waiter, the turkey and I.
To listen to some one talking,
I'd give up my hard-earned pelf.
But the turkey can't and the waiter shan't
And I never talk to myself!
I miss the rustle of lace,
The blush and the deep blue eye,
The prettiest of the faces,
Like a dream of the days gone by.
What folly to live like a hermit!
I'll ask her tonight, that's flat.
"Hi, waiter! Call me a hansom,
And bring me my coat and hat."

THIS IS IT

And it came to pass that after he had advertised his goods in THE LEDGER there came unto him great multitudes from Washington, Sardis, Murphysville, Mayslick, Germantown, Reoterville, Orangeburg, and all the region round about Maysville, even to the Lewis and Fleming county line, and did buy of him. And when his competitors saw it they marvelled among themselves, saying: "How be it that this man is busy while we loaf about our doors? And he spake unto them, saying: "Verily, verily, I say unto you in this fast age of push and rustle it is easier for a camel to enter the eye of a needle than it is for a business man to flourish in Maysville without advertising."

Another bubble has busted. William Fox, who was arrested at Vanceburg for the murder of Ada Marshall at Covington, wasn't William Fox. Next.

JURY DISAGREED.

The Second Trial Over the Concord Accident Comes to Naught.

In the Federal Court at Covington the suit of Charles Lines against the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company for the recovery of $30,000 damages for the loss of his two daughters at Concord, who were run over and killed by a train while driving over a crossing one night in November, 1896, was completed Saturday and given to the Jury at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Jury wrestled with the case up to 6 o'clock that evening when they reported to Judge Barr that there was no possibility of their ever coming to an agreement, and they were discharged and the case continued.

In a former trial of the case the plaintiff recovered judgment for $2,000, but a new trial was granted.

The plaintiff was represented by Senator Goebel of Covington and defendant by Attorneys Wadsworth and Cochran of this city.

SAVED HIS NECK.

Amos Riggs Gets Twenty-One Years in Penitentiary.

ONCE SENTENCED TO BE HUNG.

After a trial lasting more than a week, the Amos Riggs case was given to the Jury Friday night.

And Saturday afternoon a verdict was reached fixing his punishment at twenty-one years in the Penitentiary.

The wife of the prisoner, who with two of their seventeen children had attended him throughout the trial, broke down and wept when the verdict was rendered, though Riggs preserved the same composure that has characterized his conduct throughout.

It will be remembered that Riggs some years ago killed a neighbor named Black, for which he served three years at Frankfort.

Returning he resumed his residence near Mt. Gilead, where in March, 1897, he shot and killed W. R. and Mandeville Boyd, father and son, and the latter his own son-in-law.

Immediately following the killing he fled, but was a few days later captured at Batavia, O., and brought to this city.

After several delays he was tried at the spring term, 1898, of the Mason Circuit Court, the verdict being murder in the first degree, and he was sentenced to hang.

His lawyers, however, carried the case to the Court of Appeals, the judgment was reversed and a new trial ordered.

He was ably defended by Messrs. Ely and Crane of Batavia, O., and Judge Thomas R. Plaster of this city, while the prosecution was represented by Commonwealth's Attorney Daum, County Attorney Frank P. O'Donnell and Judge A. T. Cole.

It is thought his attorneys will let the verdict rest, satisfied that their client got off easily.

Riggs is now about 40 years of age, and if he lives out his sentence will be 67.
